

MEMORIAL FUNDS AND MEDALS

Morton Allport Memorial Fund (1879)

The sum of £200 was raised by special subscription as a memorial to Morton Allport, a generous donor of collections to the Museum and a contributor of numerous papers, who also took an active interest in the introduction of salmon and other trout. The income accruing from the Memorial Fund is applied to the purchase of scientific books.

R. M. Johnston Memorial Fund (1920)

The sum of £230 was subscribed as a memorial to R. M. Johnston, Government Statistician, a member of the Society from 1883 till his death in 1918, and a Member of the Council and Vice-President for many years. During that time he contributed 103 papers, the subjects embracing statistics, geology, botany, zoology, and palaeontology. He will be remembered not only by students of social and economic science, but also by those interested in Tasmanian geology.

The Memorial Fund provides for (1) Lecture, (2) Medal to be presented to the lecturer, and (3) Purchase of books.

The present paper is planned to be the first of a series to be written for the Royal Society of Tasmania, dealing with the Trout-foed Insects of that State. As the Order Plecoptera, or Mayflies, is the most important order of insects considered as trout-food, I propose to deal with them first, leaving the other aquatic orders for later treatment.

THE TROUT-FOOD INSECTS OF TASMANIA. figures for his 1871 paper, and, as far as I can tell, the other three imagines belong to the same species. . None of Walker's imagines have more than two tail-filaments, but Eaton quotes two measurements, so there were probably three." The Royal Society Library and Archives are an accessible treasure trove of scientific history. It is quite easy to lose yourself in obscure books of 1827 Society meeting reports or carefully preserved letters to Fellows exchanged two centuries ago. The register of gifts is another intriguing repository of generosity from individuals wishing to donate their contribution to scientific progress.

It had been inscribed in October 1843 with the words "For the Royal Society, Presented by Mrs Atkins". The first page was dedicated to her father John George Children FRS (1777-1852) who had nurtured Anna's artistic and scientific interests from an early age.
