The Hiding Place is a 1971 book on the life of Corrie ten Boom, written by herself and John and Elizabeth Sherrill. The idea of a book on ten Boom's life began as the Sherrills were researching for the book God's Smuggler about ten Boom's fellow Dutchman, Andrew van der Bijl. Ten Boom was already in her mid-70s when the Sherrills first heard about her. She was one of van der Bijl's favorite traveling companions, and many of his recollections were about her. In the preface to the book, the Sherrills Turns out the place he was working, this Mi Casita or whatever it is, has a habit of paying some of its help under the table. They had some undocumented workers in the kitchen in addition to this guy. That's a problem they'll have to deal with, but it doesn't concern us right now, except to say that as far as we can tell, Steven Kollman didn't exist in Dove Point. She made sure the box was hidden and opened the door. Except it wasn't her mom-it was her grandpa. He stood there in the hallway looking as uncomfortable as he always did when he came to her room. She didn't return to the bed or look for a book to read. Without thinking of it too much, she left and went downstairs, following in her grandpa's wake. He was sitting in his chair, the baseball game playing at high volume. Only RUB 220.84/month. The Hiding Place Full Review - Book Reading. STUDY. Flashcards. Who is the author of the Hiding Place?
