In 1975 the Tao of Jeet Kune Do was first made available only in paperback. The book was initially NOT available in Hardback; A Hardback edition was first made available in 1976. The forgoing statement is attributed to Black Belt Magazine and the source data is at http://blackbeltmag.com/daily/traditional-martial-arts-training/jeet-kune-do/the-saga-of-bruce-lee-tao-of-jeet-kune-do/[4]

Subsequent editions have been available in paperback form only except for the following; In 2006, Black Belt Magazine offered this book in hardback form, on a.

In Jeet Kune Do, one finds firmness in movement, which is real, easy and alive. Therefore, springiness and alertness of footwork is the theme. [image: Separator.ai].

Footwork in Jeet Kune Do tends to aim toward simplification with a minimum of movement. Do not get carried away and stand on your toes and dance all over the place like a fancy boxer. Economical footwork not only adds speed but, by moving just enough to evade the opponent’s attack, it commits him fully. The simple idea is to get where you are safe and he isn’t. 46 quotes from Tao of Jeet Kune Do:

"Use only that which works, and take it from any place you can find it."

It is being wholly and quietly alive, aware and alert, ready for whatever may come. Bruce Lee, Tao of Jeet Kune Do. tags: zen. 335 likes. Like.

Quite the contrary, Jeet Kune Do is an orthodox expression of Taoist, Buddhist, and Western metaphysical principles. From the poem on the book’s opening page, to the passionate expressions of its final chapter, ideas in Tao of JKD can be traced directly to earlier written works. Here is a sampling of these sources.

Into a soul absolutely free From thoughts and emotion, Even the tiger finds no room To insert its fierce claws. Inspired by the Tao Te Ching, chapter 50: "It is said that he who knows how to live meets no tigers or buffaloes on the road; for in him, a tiger finds nothing to lay his c His book the Tao Of Jeet Kune Do is still the best selling martial arts book of all time. While more of a philosophy than a how to do JKD book, it still gives us insight into what Lee intended for his idea of what self defense could be. It is our goal that you find our teaching and information a valuable part of your journey in the Martial Arts, and that knowing us has made a difference in your life, and at last you have found a place where you belong."

Most of Jeet Kune Do techniques offered by other associations today offer nothing but philosophies and do not have a lot to do with the established intensions and principles of Bruce Lee. With us, you can access the right training material in their original form as taught by him at his famous three original schools.
