

Ten Post-graduate Lectures Delivered Before the Fellowship of Medicine at the House of the Royal Society of Medicine 1919-1920. Royal Society of Medicine (Great Britain). 1922. J. Bale, sons & Danielsson, Limited, 1922

See more of British Society for the History of Medicine on Facebook. Log In. or. Create New Account. See more of British Society for the History of Medicine on Facebook. Log In. Forgot account? Our new blog outlines the history of the accident and emergency department - from being a subscription service in the 1800s to emerging as a specialism in the 20th century & the establishment of the Royal College of Emergency Medicine. Have a read! Fellowship of Postgraduate Medicine. From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia. Fellowship of Postgraduate Medicine. Founded. 1918. The Fellowship of Postgraduate Medicine Building in London. The Fellowship of Postgraduate Medicine (FPM) is a British non-profit organisation that was founded after World War I and pioneered the development of postgraduate educational programmes in all branches of medicine.[1][2] Its foundation in the autumn of 1919 was the results of a merger between the Fellowship of Medicine and the Postgraduate Medical Association[3] and Sir William. The support starts before you even get here, so the admin staff are really helpful with all the paperwork and visas and work permits and all that sort of stuff. The Royal Society of Medicine is one of the major providers of accredited... debate. Videos of many key lectures are also available online, increasing access to the Society's education programme. The RSM is home to one of the largest medical libraries in Europe, with an extensive collection of books, journals, electronic journals and online medical databases. Two years later the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society of London came together with seventeen specialist medical societies and, with a supplementary Royal Charter granted by Edward VII, became the Royal Society of Medicine.

. Address. London, United Kingdom. Royal Society of Medicine (Great Britain). Date. 1922. Where to find it. Access this item on the Wellcome Library website. About this work. Publication/Creation. Grave familial jaundice of the newly born; by Sir Humphry Rolleston.--IV. The value of combined treatment, with special reference to surgery, electricity and X-rays; by Francis Hernaman-Johnson.--V. On the after-effects and so-called after-effects of anaesthetics; by J. D. Mortimer.--VI. Chronic paroxysmal trigeminal neuralgia and its treatment; by Wilfred Harris.--VII. Morbid mental growths; by Sir George H. Savage.--VIII. Pyorrhoea alveolaris and its relationship to disease; by N. Mutch.--IX.